SUNTECK APPOINTS NEW CHIEF TECHNOLOGY OFFICER

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 11, 2008 -- Jacksonville, Fla. – Sunteck Transport Group, a non-asset based provider of transportation services, has announced the appointment of David A. Less, CISM, CISA, CSM, as chief information officer and vice president. In his new role, Less will be responsible for the management and development of Sunteck's technology offering in support of its growing network of transportation and logistics agents.

Less has 22 years of information systems, audit, and consulting experience working with global corporations. Prior to joining Sunteck, he was global director of IT audit and advisory services for CTG, Inc., a major information technology staffing, solutions and application management provider.

Before CTG, Less was senior vice president of IT audit services for CBIZ HarborView, Inc, and chief technology officer and an executive committee member at HarborView Partners, LLC. Before starting HarborView Partners, he was president of DAL Consulting, which provided IT services including risk assessments, security and controls reviews, project management and pre- and post-implementation assessments.

His other corporate affiliations include MIS Training Institute, where he provided global IT training to all levels of management, internal auditors, and technology and audit professionals. Clients included Fortune 10 companies, the U.S. government, and major public accounting firms. The major topics for his classes included risk assessment, systems development methodology and project planning, IT controls, business application testing, client–server environment control, SAP R/3 Basis, e-commerce infrastructures, and security of e-business applications.

In addition, has served as global director of information systems assurance services for Foot Locker (formerly the Woolworth Corporation), director of IT audit for Melville Corporation and a member of audit management at Avon Products, Philip Morris Management Corp., and W.R. Grace.

“We’re pleased to have an IT executive of David’s caliber join our organization,” said Michael P. Williams, chief operating officer, Sunteck Transport Group. “His experience and guidance will be invaluable as we further develop the technology solutions that service our agents, customers and internal applications. Technology continues to be a major part of our strategy for further growing our business.”
